with the state, Mr. Clarke handled numerous high-profile matters, including Abbott v. Burke (constitutional challenge to the state's educational funding laws), United Wire v. Morristown Memorial Hospital (ERISA challenge to the state's hospital rate system) and Amato v. Wilentz (First Amendment challenge to the Chief Justice of New Jersey's exercise of administrative powers over New Jersey courthouses).

The breadth of Mr. Clarke's litigation expertise is reflected by the range of his noteworthy successes, from staving off a class action against the State Police for alleged racial profiling to the successful pursuit of compensation for construction contract breaches. His clients include public agencies from the state to the municipal level, institutions of higher education and private corporations engaged in activities as diverse as software design and real estate development.

Mr. Clarke received his B.A. in English Literature summa cum laude from Rutgers University in 1976. As an undergraduate, he was Phi Beta Kappa, as well as the recipient of the Cheitz Award as the graduate with the highest GPA in his class. He was awarded his J.D. from Yale Law School in 1979, where he was a member of the school's Barrister's Union. Following law school, Mr. Clarke was the law clerk to the Hon. Milton Pollack of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. Judge Pollock, who provided Mr. Clarke's initial legal training, was on the bench until age 98 and had a profound influence on federal practice that is still significant today. Mr. Clarke is an AV-rated attorney by Martindale-Hubble, and was designated a New Jersey Super Lawyer in 2006. He is a New Jersey native and lifetime resident.
